

MICHEL MINERS RETURN TO WORK

They Remained out After Agreement Had Been Signed as Protest Against Shorman's Action.

Fernie, May 9.—The Michel miners returned to work this morning. At a meeting held in that place last night it was decided to accept the terms of the agreement and fall in line with the other camps. The men themselves have now admitted that their reason was purely personal for staying out after the agreement had been signed, and that they wished to get out of their district leaders down there, preferably Shorman, to administer a reprimand in public for what they consider had been their lack of interest towards the strike. The close of this incident marks the termination of the coal district tie-up, a situation which has covered more area and affected more people to a greater extent than any other similar situation in Canada.

Accurately Compiled Figures Place it at This Meeting of Underwriters

Associated Press Despatch. New York, May 9.—The San Francisco confederation of April, 1906, swept away not only every dollar of profit previously made by insurance companies out of underwriting since 1890, but cost them the loss of $350,000,000.00, according to a statement made by President George Burchell, of the National Board of Underwriters, at the annual meeting of that organization held here today. Burchell said that carefully compiled figures show that of the total property and casualty catastrophes to have been in round numbers $370,000,000.00. The loss to 345 insurance companies was $150,000,000.00, and in addition to this there was a loss of $220,000,000.00 to re-insurance in foreign companies, which would make the total loss to insurance companies throughout the world between $220,000,000.00 and $250,000,000.00.

ROSES, KISSES, CARNATIONS

Instead of Bricksbats the Car Strike Breakers in Frisco Yesterday.

Associated Press Despatch. San Francisco, May 9.—Roses and carnations instead of bricksbats and obnoxiousness were features of the trips of two cars of the United railroad manned by twenty strikebreakers from the town today. The cars covered three or four miles through the business and residence streets. The operating of the cars moved women to stand on doorsteps or lean from windows and wave handkerchiefs, clap their hands and throw tissues too.

The cars halted while young women brought carnations and roses from the shops and offered them to the men, but on the afternoon trip a taunting, jeering crowd of more than 10,000 strikers and strike sympathizers howled for blocks along the sidewalks, threatening and taunting the men. The program tomorrow is to run the cars through a more dangerous section of the city, and trouble is anticipated.

FAILED TO GET SINGLE JUROR

Difficulty Being Met in Empanelling Jury in the Haywood Case.

Boise, Idaho, May 9.—William D. Haywood, the first of all the alleged participants in the conspiracy of revenue by which it is asserted the assassination of ex-Governor Steiwer was plotted and executed, was placed on trial for his life today. Counsel for state and prisoner selected the jury. At no time was the court room kept steadily at the task for five hours.

No talsman was accepted as juror, but successful progress was made, and the indications are that a jury will be obtained by the end of next week. The opening day of the trial was earnest and businesslike, the chief feature was the absence of crowds or demonstrations. At no time was the court room more than half filled and the streets forming the court house square quiet and a single file.

The case was heard shortly before 10 o'clock by the attendance of the jury panel, and adjournment was taken on Monday. Meanwhile the sheriff will surround the trial with a force of hundred men. The eleven men named for the jury but not accepted or rejected were locked up and will be closely guarded.

IS NOT DEAD. FIRST CONTRACT IN $2,000,000 WORTH HAS BEEN LET.

Winnipeg, May 9.—William Newman, C. Co., contractors, are to secure the first contract in connection with the civic power scheme. The board of control has recommended the tender of the firm, to construct the grading for the tramway from Point DuBois to LaSalle.

The price is about $25,000. The balance of the estimated cost of $200,000 for the tramway is made up of the cost of the rails and ties for the tramway and a bridge over the river. The contractors also decided today to recommend to the council that tenders be called at once for the construction of the power plant at Point St. Bois, the transmission lines and the substation in Winnipeg. The tenders, it is understood, will be called in by September 1. Advertisements will be inserted in papers throughout the United States and Great Britain. This action of the council puts aside all doubts as to the intention to proceed with the power scheme. The total cost of the proposed work will be about $5,000,000.

Speaking today, Mayor Ashdown said: "I wish to state that no financial institution has been, as I know, on, on behalf of any corporation, tried to hold up the power scheme during the financial negotiations."

THE RECORD ADMIRAL FURNACE

Is fitted with the improved Record Triangular Grate—the most perfect furnace grate on the market. Of the four triangular grate bars, each bar is operated by the use of a handle applied to either of the two centre bars. To remove this handle after shaking is impossible until the grate bar has been returned to its original position, flat and in place, without any of the coals sticking up. The result is that the bars are always flat under the fire and that it is impossible for lumped coals to drop through and be wasted. The Record Triangular Grate can be entirely removed from without without lying on stomach or bothering with a light.

The Future of Music in the West.

At a period of Western life which is so essentially constructive, one of the great defects is naturally the lack of attention to the finer arts.
The country simply abounds with opportunities of material advancement, and the struggle for worldly treasure there is a strong temptation to let the vision of higher things pass.
We leave ourselves open to the "divine Sarah's" criticism that Canada has no literature, no art as yet. But has Canada no school of art yet?

Miss Forsyth's Opinion.

Has not Canada lately been giving some distinctively fresh and desirable additions to the world of music? And has not the West reason to hope that there will yet be a Western Canadian school?

Appropos of this, in conversation recently with Miss Jean Forsyth, a well-known Canadian artist, who has recently made Edmonton her home, one asked—

"What difference do you note in musical conditions in Canada, east and west? Or have we any 'musical conditions' here at all yet?"

Miss Forsyth's enthusiasm was well worth looking on.

"Surely," she said, with characteristic energy, "the West has talent, more latent than developed it is true; but in time it will be developed. I know that Sir Alexander Mackenzie on his Canadian tour remarked upon the exceptionally good quality of the choruses he met with in these Western towns."

This Altitude Good for Voice.

"Even though the voice-production was not always essentially correct, the quality of the voice was notably clear and good. The high and dry altitudes had something to do with this, of course."

Then the examiner of the Royal Conservatory of Music in London made a similar remark on one of his more recent visits to Canada. He said that while Australia possessed more developed talent, there was an abundance of good material for musicians in Canada—only that musical education was too frequently neglected.

The West's Musical Progress.

"But I can perceive a real progress musically in the West between Winnipeg and the Coast in just the last five years. Edmonton had an evidence of this a couple of weeks ago in the production of a Gilbert-Sullivan opera. The adaptability of these musically inclined, and the interest they evince in a call for voices in amateur operas—these things are significant of the future."

Already Eastern Canada is thoughtfully awake musically, and these past few years have been particularly productive. Pauline Donalda, the young prima donna of Montreal, already rivals Albany's fresher efforts; Francis McCreannan and Florence Easton have permanently made their way to the front; Eva Gauthier will make her way at recitals—these are only some of the singers of Eastern Canada.

A Night Western Singer.

And according to the reports from musical circles in London, a Western girl—Miss Alice of Portage la Prairie—is now one of the most highly appreciated singers in London. She made her success in England in Elgin's "Dream of Gerontius" this season, and it is said only to herald further successes.

"And did you know that Donalda and her husband, M. Serellihae, sang in Montreal a group of little songs that were written by a young musician there, Sydney Dalton? The songs were very favorably received by the critics and the audience."

"In London, Miss Gauthier is sharing other songs by Mr. Tremblay, an other Canadian composer."

"In fact, we are just on the verge of things musical. The East is awake; the West is arousing its voice, and there is no doubt that it will have a musical future of its own."

A Bit of Humor.

Doctor—Madam, your husband must have absolute rest.
Madam—Well, doctor, he won't listen to me.
Doctor—A very good beginning, madam, a very good beginning.

FRIDAY, MAY 16, 1907.

THE SESSION.

The two outstanding legislative features of the five-month session of Parliament, which closed on April 27th, were the tariff revision and the Labor Disputes Act. It speaks volumes for the tariff revision of 1907 that after ten years operation in times of marvellous industrial and commercial development, when the foundations of a nation's fiscal policy are most severely tested, that the revision of 1907 was much less a general overhauling than a readjustment of minor features. Nothing of the nature of reconstruction was found necessary, there was an alteration of essentials, and the tried and proven principle of a revenue tariff with a British preference remains the foundation work of Canada's real national policy. While it was found necessary in some cases to lessen the preference on some classes of goods used largely on the farm the purchaser was given the benefit of a lowering of the general tariff.

That our tariff is still a tariff for revenue and that the British preference remains is certainly no fault of these Canadian enterprises whose efforts would be filled by a tariff which enabled them to exact more from the consumer, per of the political party whose tariff ideal is the exclusion of all foreign-made goods. Never has the Manufacturers' Association carried on a more persistent campaign for high protection than during the life of the present Parliament and never has the Opposition been more adamantly willing to become the handmaiden of this legal and wealthy organization. The demand, both of the manufacturers and of their Parliamentary representatives is simply that the Canadian consumer be delivered into their hands by a tariff "adequate" to prevent the importation of any and all manufactured goods. With these demands the manufacturers have not complied and white manifesting the greatest sympathy with the development of Canadian industries have reminded both their fiscal and political opponents that their real allies in Canada beside the manufacturers who have a right to "liberty and the pursuit of happiness." The reminder to has been in the form of an ever-recurring allusion to the principle of tariff for revenue purposes.

The Labor Disputes Act is notable rather for what it indicates than as a remedial or coercive measure. The groundwork of the bill is the statutes in law of the principle that the Canadian public has an interest in the operation of public utilities which entitles the public to elect representatives to the legislature to see that the public interest is safeguarded by making it illegal for either employer or employees to stop the operation of a public utility until the cause of dissatisfaction has been investigated; on the other hand, the rights of both employer and employees are safeguarded by provision that either may demand and secure such investigation and that the inquiry shall be prompt, fair and impartial. The session of Parliament in which the Act was passed had not ended until a strike of coal miners in Nova Scotia had been settled amicably by the arbitration of its provisions, and until the striking miners of Southern Alberta and British Columbia, on being made aware of these provisions, had returned to work, pending the finding of the arbitrator. The measure is a long step toward the peaceful solution of labor troubles and is at the same time the "bill of rights" of the public regarding the operation of utilities.

Of possibly not less importance to Western Canada than either of these enactments was the new Dominion Lands Act, which was introduced, but could not be carried through during the session. The purpose of the measure was twofold: First, to consolidate the present Land Act and amendments, with confusion, amendments, and alterations which have been made piecemeal, and second, to provide for the disposal of land now held in railway reserves, but now released by the satisfaction of the railway companies' claims to land grants. A further object in view in determining the manner of disposing of the land was the necessity of securing the construction of a railway to Hudson Bay at an early date. Legislative provision has been in existence since 1880 for the land grant in aid of such line, but it is not the policy of the Government to extend the land grant for the 400 miles of road still remaining to be built. It was considered fair in disposing of the 400,000,000 acres of land now freed by the relinquishment of the railway companies' claims to land grants, to secure to the Dominion some compensation for what assistance it may be necessary to give to the Hudson Bay Railway. On the other hand, it was not considered desirable to throw the land open to indiscriminate sale, as experience has amply shown that this would be equivalent to placing it in the hands of speculators who would hold up the railway, for whatever reason they might desire. The preservation privilege was, therefore, adopted, which the actual homesteader was to be permitted to purchase a second quarter-section at a fair price, provided he performed settlement duties on the land, similar to the homesteader duties. This means the land would pass directly into the hands of the farmer and the national treasury would be recouped in a measure for the burden of the Hudson Bay Railway.

From the outset the Opposition made war upon the bill. Mr. Foster assailed it with the fury of a local speculator, who saw his hopes of a speedy turnover threatened by the prospect of this large area being put upon the market at a moderate price; his companions joined with less candor, but equal energy in blocking the measure. Owing to the departure of the Premier, to attend the Colonial Conference, contentious legislation had to be postponed and the Land Bill went over until next session.

The new postal arrangement, while not a matter of Parliamentary action, was one of the most important Government announcements of the session. By this the postage on British publications is lessened and that on American publications is increased. The former needed no justification beyond the desire to promote friendship with Mother Land. Under the previous arrangement the Canadian mails were loaded down with American publications and for the expense involved made good no adequate compensation. A worse feature was that a very large proportion of these publications were merely disguised advertising sheets, and Canada found herself paying for the distribution of advertising matter designed to draw Canadian trade to American business houses. This was too obviously suicidal to continue.

From the Opposition side of the House the session produced absolutely nothing of public significance. Days that should have been spent in the consideration of national affairs were spent in the clashing of private opinions of the country who had the temerity to be Liberals in politics and still refused to relinquish the common rights of citizenship. The days dragged into weeks, the weeks into months and still the frantic assurance continued, to offset the insurance paid by loss and prolonged malice. This, of course, was interesting enough as a study in political strategy—a mighty poor kind, but meantime, the business of the country which pays the price was transacted in half-hour instalments, few and far between—usually in the wee small hours, when the Opposition energy had run out of wind. Naturally under the circumstances, there could be no proportionate or proper consideration of matters of real national concern—nor does it appear to have dawned upon the Opposition that at least one of the purposes of their existence is to pay some attention to such matters.

Canada never had so good a Government as today, and lucky it is for her, for never had we an Opposition so thoroughly and abjectly useless. Constructive criticism and suggestive disposition have no place in the program of an Opposition in whose thought party expediency towers mountain-like above the middle-class of Canadian business.

A COLONIAL PREFERENCE IMPOSSIBLE.

The Mail and Empire has gone out of its way to criticize Sir Wilfrid Laurier for not denouncing a preference for Canadian products in the British markets as a quid pro quo for the preference Canada has given to the products of Great Britain. As if such were impossible.

unity of the Empire. Sir Wilfrid Laurier has very wisely and with almost prophetic vision, pointed out what the basis of unity must be. Each member of the Empire must look to its own interests and will best serve the whole by so doing. The colonies have received full freedom of independence and have used it to develop their trade, while at the same time they have built up tariff walls against the Mother Country. Doubtless, the colonies feel this policy is vital to their interests. In the same way the British Government holds that free trade is vital to the interests of the people of the United Kingdom. The essential point in the consideration is that the British people depend for food and raw materials on external sources of supply. There is no doubt that it is only by their special productive activity, by the enormous earnings of their shipping and by keeping the largest open market in the world that Great Britain is able to maintain her economic supremacy in the keen competition of this generation. All these factors depend in the long run upon keeping food and raw materials on the same basis and at an equitable scale of prices. After the fullest discussion on both sides of the fiscal question the British electorate by an unexampled majority have declined for the time being, and with Mr. Asquith's splendid bluff fresh in their minds they will show no disposition after their views.

Moreover, the growth of Britain's colonial trade has not increased sufficiently to warrant such discrimination on the part of Great Britain against non-British nations. Over fifty years ago, when Britain was losing her phenomenal commercial development as a result of free trade the imports from the colonies were 7.27 per cent. of the total imports of the nation, and although the imports to Great Britain have enormously increased since that time, yet the imports from the colonies are only 2.4 per cent. In the case of the exports the percentage are 3.4 per cent. in 1873 and 32.8 per cent. in 1906.

NOTE AND COMMENT.

One can quote Scripture on charity like a man who has just given twenty-five cents to the minister's stand.

There is one consolation in having this weather. It has forestalled the release of the usual outburst of spring poetry.

Although the British people refused Chamberlainism, the universal tale-teller for all her economical ills, she has shown a wonderful vigor that has disappointed the protectionists of the old country. The last budget indicates a surplus of $25,000,000 and a reduction of $20,000,000 to the public debt.

The recurrence of the soft-muds in Canada is absolutely a nuisance when the world is busy trying to determine the value of unearned increments in every man's career. The self-made man is bound to hog every thing in his life which seems to be good without pausing to consider what a little accident might have submerged him so far below the surface that he would have suffocated in perfect silence.

FACILITIES FOR COLD STORAGE

Are Lacking and in Consequence
City Suffers. Reason Edmonton
Eats Montreal Butter and Eggs.

The fact that last winter hundreds of cases of eggs had to be brought in to Edmonton from the East to supply the local demand, and that just now there is almost a butter famine in the city, may cause some people to wonder why such conditions should obtain. The Bulletin has undertaken to make some enquiries.

As a matter of fact, the Edmonton district produces more butter, eggs and other farm products than would supply the requirements of a city twice its size. The only reason for the fact that at certain seasons there is a shortage in the city is the lack of cold-storage facilities during the season when the farm products are not readily obtained. The local market cannot consume all that is offered and as a result much of the products is shipped East by the carload. But then, through natural causes, the output is decreased the city is compelled to secure its supply from the big storage centers.

At the last session of the Dominion Parliament the sum of $100,000 was voted for the purpose of aiding in the installation of cold-storage plants in the Dominion. One firm in each town that wished to have established a cold-storage plant would have 50 per cent. of the cost advanced by coming with the conditions laid down by the government.

F. S. Williamson, manager of the Edmonton Produce Co. is now negotiating with the Federal authorities in regard to the installation of cold-storage facilities in Edmonton. Mr. Williamson has already put in an application for a site on the west end of the city, near the old site of the old city hall, which would hold 20,000 dozen of eggs.

END OF WORLD NEAR.

Nine Citizens of Great Falls, Mont., Sacrifice Property and Await Translation.

Great Falls, Mont., May 9.—Believing that the end of the world will come within ten days, and that he with a handful of followers will be translated to Heaven, A. W. Stanton, a prominent stock man of this city, yesterday disposed of all his property, valued at several thousand dollars, to the first bidder for $100, and, taking up his residence in a rented house in the city, is calmly awaiting the end. Stanton's followers, eight in number, disposed of their possessions in a similar manner and are with him.

ECZEMA AGAIN OVERCOME.

Zam-Buk Cures a Case Which for Two Years Had Defied Every Remedy Tried.

A Farmer's Grateful Testimony.
No case of eczema, skin disease or ulceration, should be deemed as until Zam-Buk has been applied. The case of Mr. Francis Bonnell, of St. Anne's (Man.), is a powerful illustration of Zam-Buk's power. Mr. Bonnell suffered from eczema for two years, and tried a great number of remedies. None of them lowered him a hair, and he was actually run down by the disease. A small sample box of Zam-Buk was given to him, and even so little quantity as that did not a little good. He then obtained a regular supply, and by the time it had used a few boxes it was completely cured.

Zam-Buk differs from ordinary salves and ointments in containing no animal oil or fat. It is compounded from rich, healthy vegetable essences, and is an ideal natural combination of power and purity. It is highly antiseptic, and instantly kills bacteria and disease germs, which settling on to wounds and skin diseases set up festering, blood poisoning, etc. For cuts, burns, bruises, ulcers, abscesses, pimples, boils, skin eruptions, eczema, etc., spreading sores, children's skin troubles, chafing, etc., Zam-Buk is unequalled. It also cures piles. All druggists sell boxes at 50c a box, or from Zam-Buk Co., Toronto, for price, 6 boxes for $2.50.
